312/undercover

November 19, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, Operative at 8.30 a.m. proceeded to the Middlesex Lunchroom.

Operative upon leaving the Middlesex Lunchroom proceeded to the railroad station and joined the company of Garry Kenny. After remaining in the company of Garry Kenny for a short time, Operative proceeded to church.

Upon coming from Church after Mass, Operative met young Hayes. While walking back to the railroad station from the Church in company of young Hayes and another fellow by the name of George, Operative and his companions passed Mr. Kirby. Upon passing Mr. Kirby, young Hayes remarked to Operative, "There is the Rat of New Brunswick." George remarked, "Yes and that fellow Mulvey is another foxy guy. He stands around street corners and listens to what people have to say, and then he goes back and tells it."

Upon arrival at the railroad station, Operative left the company of young Hayes, and George, and joined Garry Kenny. Garry Kenny informed Operative that the police are going to clean up Nelson St., and other different places so that it would look good for them, and show that they were on the job in case there was any come-back in the Hall Case.

At about 1 p.m. Operative left Garry Kenny and proceeded to the Middlesex Lunchroom where Operative overheard the following remarks:- "That fellow Levine who rented the Phillips Farm could tell some of the things that went on up there, but he is a foxy Jew to keep out of it."

Operative upon leaving the Middlesex Lunchroom, proceeded to the Phillips Farm and upon arrival there observed a group of women.

Upon getting within hearing distance of the above mentioned women, Operative overheard the following conversation:- "Why I come here every Sunday, and every time I am here I meet those two women and they are always asking questions. They think I donot know who they are, but I do. They are two
